GETTING STARTED

How to Use This Guide

This guide covers statewide Oklahoma resources: the government agencies, hotlines, and courts that serve every county. Each section also tells you how to find the right local office near you.

Start here: Oklahoma's Victim Protective Order covers stalking or harassment whether or not the stalker is a family member — a police report is needed if they're not.

Before you call: have your documentation ready — dates, what happened, any messages or photos saved, and whether a report has already been filed elsewhere.

If you're in danger: call 911 first. Every other number in this guide is for follow-up support, not emergency response.

What's inside

- Emergency & immediate-danger contacts
- Statewide Oklahoma agencies (DAC Crime Victims Compensation Board, DAC Victim Assistance, Courts)
- Reporting to local police & county sheriffs
- Domestic violence protective orders explained
- Step-by-step: filing a report & getting a protective order
- Specialized support (child abuse, elder abuse, civil rights)
- A one-page master contact sheet

Legal notice: This guide offers general information for educational purposes and is not legal advice. Phone numbers, addresses, and procedures for Oklahoma state and local agencies were verified at time of writing but can change — confirm current details with the agency directly. Stalking.org is not affiliated with any agency listed and is not a crisis service. If you are in immediate danger, call 911.

ACT NOW

Emergency & Immediate Danger

If a stalker is near you right now, threatening you, or has violated a protection order, these are your first calls — before anything else in this guide.

LOCAL POLICE

● Reporting to Local Police & Sheriffs

Stalking is usually reported to the police department in the city where you live or work, or to your county sheriff outside city limits.

Your local police department (non-emergency line)Dial 911, or search “[your city] police non-emergency”

Stalking can be reported at any city police department or county sheriff's office.

File a Victim Protective Order (VPO) for stalking or harassment — a police report is required if you don't have a family or household relationship with the stalker.

Good to know: you can file a report at any police department, not only the one nearest the stalker. Ask for the officer's name, a complaint or case number, and how to follow up.

Victim Protective Orders (VPO) in Oklahoma

Family or household member: no police report is required before you file for a VPO.

Not a family or household member: you must file a police report first, then you can still seek a VPO for stalking or harassment.

Cost: there is no fee to file a Victim Protective Order in Oklahoma.

Step-by-Step: What to Expect

● Filing a Police Report

- 1 Go to any police department or county sheriff's office — you do not have to go to the one nearest the stalker.
- 2 Ask to speak with an officer and say clearly that you want to report stalking or harassment.
- 3 Bring your documentation: dates, messages, photos, and names of any witnesses.
- 4 Ask for the report's complaint number before you leave, and request a copy if possible.
- 5 Ask about victim assistance resources — many departments have a victim advocate or can refer you to ACADV.

● Getting an Order of Protection

- 1 If the stalker is not a family or household member, file a police report first.
- 2 Go to your District Court and ask for a Petition for Protective Order.
- 3 Describe each incident with as much detail as possible — dates, what happened, and any pattern you've noticed.
- 4 A judge can issue an emergency ex parte order quickly if you're in immediate danger, often without the other party present.
- 5 A hearing for a final order typically follows within 14 days — keep a copy of any order with you, at home, and at work.
